FIFTY CARS OF COAL ARRIVE

Dealers Are Being Flooded With Additional Orders.

FROM SHIVERING CITIZENS.

Fifty cars of coal are standing on track in the local freight yards of Salt Lake railroads this morning.

The coal got into the city late yesterday afternoon and last night. About thirty cars came in over the Oregon Short Line and some twenty more over the Denver & Rio Grande. It's only a drop in the bucket—declare the dealers, but more than welcome in a situation where "every little bit helps."

The fifty cars will disappear in the coal got into the city late yesterday as unable to articulate.

The fifty cars will disappear in a trice into Salt Lake's great coal devouring maw. Then the neatly dressed clerks in the coal offices will climb back onto their stools to watch the busy street throngs file past the windows or grin pleasantly into the telephone while the man at the other end of the line "can't understand why he can't get coal when Bill Jones got some yesterday." What time can be spared from these two duties is spent in sharpening lead pencils, so that when the next batch gets in they won't have to weste any time getting rid.

Situation Still Bad.

While yesterday's arrival of fiffy cars will unquestlonably help matters to a considerable extent, Salt Lake is still in desperate need of coal—thousands of tons of it. Every dealer along the street is behind in his deliveries on from 50 to 300 orders, and not a little ill humor is being exhibited over the manner in which the railroads are confiscating the coal shipped into the city.

Talk of Higher Prices.

Along the line of the Gregon Short Line the situation is reaching a crisis in a score of places. At Ontorio, Ore, yesterday, a discation of citzens stopped a Short Line beal train and forced the conductor to siderack four cars of the precious fuel before they allowed the train to proceed. At Nyssa, ida, the citizens took matters had their own ands and forced the train to let go two more cars of coci. The officials of the line are greatly astated over the matter, fearing the holding up of the coal trains may become chronical along the line.

The officials of the Rio Grande system declared last night that they have experienced no trouble of this kind to date.

Approximately one hundred cars of coal came into Utah yesterday for consumption within the state. It is impossible to learn how much coal is on the way to the great structure was begun some months ago, but so quietly and unostentations) but so quietly and unostentations was it carried on that comparatively few had any idea of the immensity of the rink or had formed any thing like a correct conception of just what it was to be when finished.

The Auditorium, as it will be known was constructed by the Auditorium Skating Rink association, of which Philip S. O'Mara's president and C. L. Colson manager.
